

When looking at both parts of the contact page and the index page, they are pretty similar in structure as they both center themselves on the page. In particular the index page feels more compact compared to the contact page while on the other hand the contact page is more full and the forms itself also give it a different look compared to the index page. The images on the contact page are a lot bigger in comparison to the index page as well.